The guide to the ageing and sexing of common European ducks, first published in 2014 by ONCFS and the French Federation of Hunters, is now available in English thanks to technical support from the Duck Specialist Group and financial support from the British Association for Shooting and Conservation. This guide aims to help bird ringers, hunters, and other people interested in waterbirds to sex and age the ten most common freshwater duck species in Europe (Red-crested Pochard, Common Pochard, Tufted Duck, Gadwall, Teal, Mallard, Pintail, Shoveler, Garganey and Wigeon).

Age and sex determination mostly relies on the examination of wing feathers, illustrated here by tens of original photographs with a concise text explaining which specific criteria to consider in each case. The book also provides information on other criteria which may be used during some parts of the year.
